CLASS-W WELL MONITOR

with UCM-200 UNIVERSAL CONTROL MODULE

BLUERIPPLE

A STEP BEYOND THE DIGITAL REVOLUTION

The UCM-200 is the most advanced remote well monitoring solution available on the market today. Designed for easy installation, rapid commissioning and near zero maintenance, it's ready for the harshest environments and brings automation to well monitoring for a variety of field study applications.

Compared to legacy solutions, this solution protects the integrity of all captured field data and provides real-time status on your critical application. Data is captured and stored locally, automatically upload to the cloud periodically, and monitored through a simple web interface from anywhere in the world.

With a plurality of communications options that include LTE cellular, long-range ISM band mesh networking, and Bluetooth Low-Energy (BLE) transceivers, the solution is ready to work in almost any environment and provide real-time measurements and data capture to the cloud. All communications are protected by industry standard encryption and advanced cyber-security measures.

With a large internal non-volatile storage memory, each device has a data vault with a capacity of 128 Mbytes which allows for more than eight (8) years of data storage of critical measurements from your site. This data is retained even after being uploaded to the cloud, preserving the record of the site measurements despite any communication or network circumstance.

Advanced features include an efficient power and control system that minimizes power consumption for the longest battery service life, advanced real-time diagnostics including critical communications metrics, battery voltage, temperature, humidity, orientation, vibration, and tampering detection.

Built to last, this is a modular solution that incorporates a well-protected wide-range DC input power system, ESD protection on all connections, and fault-tolerant protection that is housed in a schedule 40 PVC enclosure that is IP67 rated and meets IEC 60068-2 environmental standards.

Built upon more than twenty years of successful communications deployments within the industrial and utility control space, this next generation digital device brings your field survey or monitoring application up to the 21st century with a fully forward-looking solution.
